Francis Ssebikindu and wife, Lyne, were born in Uganda.

In 1974 Francis fled Idi Amin's reign of terror and came to the United States, graduated from Berkshire Christian College, earned his Westminster Theological Seminary Master of Divinity, and was an assistant chaplain. He was called to Memphis in June 1986. Lyne received her bachelor's through doctoral degrees in the United States.

Their church, Living Water, organizes summer camp for inner city youth in the N.C. mountains and delivers baskets at Thanksgiving. Its members serve in schools and prisons, distribute food and clothing, and hold both morning and evening prayer groups.
